A gold fringe on the purpling hem.
Of hills the river runs,
As down the long, green valleys falls.
The last of summer's suns.
Along its tawny gravel-hed.
Broad-flowing, swift and still,
As if the meadow levels felt.
The hurry of the hill,
Noiseless between its banks of green.
From curve it curve it slips;
The drowsy maple shadows rest.
Like fingers on its lips.

A waif from Carrol's wildest hills.

A waif from Carrol's wildost hills,
Unstoried and unknown;
The ursine legend of its name
Prowls on its banks alone.
Yet flowers as fair its slopes adorn.
As ever Yarrow know.
Or, under rainy Irish skive,
By Spensor's Mulla grow;
And through the gaps of leaning trees
Its mountain cradio shows.
The gold against the amethyst,
The green against the rose.

Teuched by a light that bath no name

A glory never sung.

Aloft on sky and mountain wall

Are tiod's great pictures bung.

How changed the summits vast and old!

No longer granite browed.

They malt in resy mist; the rock

Is softer than the cloud;

The valley boils its broath; no leaf

of all its olean is twirled The silence of eternity Seems falling on the world.

The pause before the breaking seals

Slow fades the vision of the sky, The golden water pales.
And over all the valley-land

And over all the valley-land
A gray-winged vapor sails.
I go the common way of all.
The sunset fires will burn.
The flowers will blow, the river flow,
Whan I no more return.
No whisper from the mountain pine
Nor lapsing stream shall tell
The stranger, treading where I tread,
Of him who loved them well

But beauty seen is never fost

God's colors all are fast;
The glory of this samet heavon
Into my soul has passed,—
A sense of gladness unconfined
To mortal date or clime;
As the soul liveth, it shall live
Beyond the years of time.
